RECOMMENDATION ON NEW MINING LOCATION east of Louisville tabled — A conditional use permit is requested at 10617 Mynard Road. The travel route for trucks would be on 108th Street south of Highway 66.
Landowners in that area let the Cass County Planning Commission know this week that this is not something they want to see happen.
The public hearing lasted well over an hour. The only speakers in favor were two representatives of Ash Grove Cement Company.
Ash Grove is proposing to mine sand and clay from the property using standard open pit mining methods. Minerals used in cement making that are mined from the property will be crushed, loaded onto trucks and taken to the Ash Grove operation in Louisville. Initially, truck traffic is expected to be 20 to 30 a day with the peak potential of 50 to 60 per day.
Cass County Zoning Administrator Mike Jensen said mining is a use allowed in the agricultural zoning on the property. The Future Land Use Map of the county shows the property is not in the designated area for mining, that area ends north of this particular property.
Among the comments made urging the planning commission to recommend against issuing the permit: -damage to roads and the dust from the additional truck traffic -a county bridge that could deteriorate quicker with heavy trucks daily -noise from the traffic and the excavators working on the property -safety concerns at the 108th Street intersection with Highway 66 - reduced property values -pollution of surface water -affects to groundwater - concerns about what happens when the mining is completed.
The Cass County Roads Department went on record saying "108th in its current state will not handle the proposed amount of heavy truck traffic."
The paving of 108th was broached but the Ash Grove representatives could not supply an answer as to whether the company was willing to do that.
The CUP application is expected to be back before the planning commission in October or November.
